The New Directly Acting EC CLP Regulation

Some time ago the Commission of the European Community (EC) stated that “it is the intention of the Commission to propose the inclusion of the internationally agreed GHS into Community law as soon as possible”, an intention that was generally supported within the EC. Well that day is finally here.

Following a formal Commission proposal made in late June 2007, the Council and European Parliament discussed and agreed the final text in the summer of 2008. This text will be formally adopted as a new EC Regulation in November 2008, with publication in the Official Journal expected before the end of 2008, with coming into force some 20 days later. It will be known ‘officially’ as the CLP Regulation; though many are using the easier to pronounce “CLaP”.

At this CHCS seminar knowledgeable and involved speakers will:-

- Outline the final Regulation and its the associated annexes;
- Outline the significant issues and changes made compared to the proposal;
- Identify what has to be done, and by when, and by whom;
- Identify the interpretations that are needed to properly understand the Regulations (for instance Article 4 will say that hazardous chemicals must be packaged in accordance with Titles III and IV, but needs ‘interpretation’ to understand that delivery by tanker and pipeline is not being prohibited);
- Identify what hasn’t been included in this Regulation and will be subject to adaptations to technical progress (probably very soon in 2009) to both REACH Regulation and this new CLP Regulation;

This new Regulation will amend the (EC) No 1907/2006 REACH Regulation, as well as amend, and then eventually revoke and replace, the current 67/458/EEC Dangerous Substances Directive (DSD) and the 1999/45/EC Dangerous Preparations Directive (DPD). It will require the amendment and eventual repeal of the consequential legislation in Member States (MS), such as The Chemicals (Hazard Information and Packaging for Supply) Regulations 2002 (CHIP) in Great Britain, and will require MS to introduce enforcement legislation.

This new Regulation will have substantial implications for ‘hazard communication’ issues in the forthcoming years throughout the supply chain and also for all users.

The Regulation will require effectively:-

- that the classification of every currently dangerous substance is done to both old and new systems for a transitional period;
- that the labelling of every current dangerous product is changed from current to new system;
- that every SDS is revised at least once to deal with the additional classification & labelling issues.

If you are involved in classification, labelling or safety data sheet provision then this seminar is a must for you!
